2. We are now in the preparatory stages of a war game with the [REDACTED] and others. As a consequence we need somebody to serve as teletype operator and to perform associated duties for the period 29 January through 11 February. The game requires communication every working day of this period, of which there are 10, from 1230 to 1530. With the associated duties, this person will probably have to devote at least one-half of each of the 10 days to the game. In addition, some time will be required between now and 29 January: one or two hours for training and probably a couple more for preplay transmission.

3. We appreciate your permitting [REDACTED] to serve in this capacity. Detaching her on a full-time basis for the two week period would be most convenient. As I indicated, she should have some time to do typing for you during the mornings.
